Problem Statement:

University of South Carolina students are only able to access helpful health, academic, and campus resources like Self Service Carolina, Blackboard, USC emails, financial information, and more through many disconnected websites. This lack of consolidation and efficiency makes it more difficult for students to manage this information and use it effectively, especially for those less advanced in their technical knowledge. It also prevents UofSC from being able to share information quickly and across all of campus seamlessly without confusion or overall misunderstandings with students.
